A FIELD GUIDE FROM PERSEVERANT DIGITAL · FOR SENIOR LIVING

The Seminar Seat-to-Client Playbook

Plan an educational seminar or webinar that fills seats, gets registrants to actually show up, and turns the people in the room into booked consultations.

THE SHORT ANSWER · 60 WORDS

REVIEWED OCTOBER 15, 2026

Educational seminars and webinars still work when the decision is large and the buyer wants to learn before talking to anyone. Pick a topic phrased as the question your audience already has, promote two to three weeks out, send reminders by email and consented text, teach without pressure, and call every attendee within 72 hours to book the next conversation.

Is an event right for your business?

An event is worth the effort when the decision is large, the buyer wants to learn before talking to anyone, and you have someone who can teach in plain language. People are not only searching to find you; they are searching to understand you. A good event lets them do that in an hour.

- [ ] Buyers hesitate for weeks or months because the decision costs or matters a lot.
- [ ] You have a presenter who explains clearly and does not oversell.
- [ ] You can name one next step, such as a consultation, a home assessment or a tour.
- [ ] Someone can call every attendee within a day or two.

All four checked means an event is worth a trial. Otherwise, fix the gaps first.

What this looks like for senior living communities and home care agencies

Family information sessions work because the decision usually rests with adult children, often on a deadline after a fall or hospital stay. They want costs, levels of care and the right questions before they tour. Host in your community so the event doubles as a tour; home care agencies can use a library or senior center.

Space is tight. NIC MAP reported senior housing occupancy of 89.9% in Q2 2026 (July 20, 2026). A steady information series lets you meet families early, before they choose under pressure.

Follow-up is where families are lost. In Bild & Co. mystery shops reported by Senior Housing News (February 12, 2024), 53% of web inquiries got no response within two hours. Ask care managers and discharge planners to share your invitation, too.

What topic will actually fill seats?

Phrase the topic as the question your audience already asks, not as your service name. A title that names their worry fills seats. Rewrite these in the words your clients use on the phone.

Audience	Topic phrased as the audience's question
Adult children	Paying for assisted living: what families need to know
Adult children	How to tell when a parent needs more help at home
Families deciding	Independent living, assisted living, memory care or home care: how families choose
Home care families	Bringing a caregiver into the home: what the first month looks like
Adult children	How to talk with a parent about moving

Question my clients ask most	Who asks it	Could I teach it in 45 minutes? (Y/N)

Should it be in person, a webinar or both?

Go in person when trust is the main barrier and the audience is local. Go webinar when the audience is spread out or busy. Choose hybrid only if you can staff two rooms at once.

Factor	In person	Webinar	Hybrid
Builds trust	Fastest	Moderate	Strong in the room only
Cost per attendee	Higher	Lower	Highest to run well
Biggest risk	Empty seats you paid for	Low live attendance	Neither audience gets full attention

Judge any format by cost per booked consultation, not cost per registration.

What does the 21-day timeline look like?

Promote two to three weeks out, as ON24, an enterprise webinar platform, advised on November 26, 2025. ON24 also advises reminders one week, one day and 15 minutes before; we add a confirmation and a morning-of message for local events.

Day	Task	Done
−28	Pick topic, date, venue or platform, and presenter	[ ]
−24	Build the registration page (checklist below) and confirmation email with a calendar link	[ ]
−21	Test reminders end to end; launch ads, email your list, send partners a blurb to forward	[ ]
−14	Second email; review cost per registration and cut what is not working	[ ]
−7	One-week reminder (email, text optional) with one thing they will learn	[ ]
−3	Rehearse; confirm room, tech and staff	[ ]
−1	One-day reminder (email and text) with time, place or link, parking or tech note	[ ]
0	Morning-of and 15-minute texts with the address or link; run the event	[ ]
+1 to +3	72-hour follow-up (below)	[ ]

- [ ] Headline that repeats the topic question, with date, time and place above the form
- [ ] Three bullets on what attendees will learn, and a short factual presenter bio
- [ ] Form: name, email, phone, and an unchecked text-consent box that says they can reply STOP
- [ ] A plain line that the event is educational and nobody will be pressured

How many registrations do you actually need?

Work backward from the seats you want filled.

Seats wanted ÷ show rate = registrations needed Registrations needed ÷ page conversion rate = clicks needed Clicks needed × cost per click = estimated ad budget

Example numbers, not benchmarks. For 30 people in the room at a 50% show rate, you need 60 registrations. At 15% page conversion, that is 400 clicks. At $2.50 per click, about $1,000 in ads.

For context, ON24 reported a 60% average registrant-to-attendee rate in its 2025 data (June 19, 2026). That is a vendor figure drawn mostly from B2B enterprise webinars, not a target.

Line	Your number
Seats wanted
Expected show rate
Registrations needed
Page conversion rate
Clicks needed
Cost per click
Estimated ad budget
Consultations booked
Ad budget ÷ consultations booked

Run the last line after every event. It tells you whether to keep going.

What should happen during and after the event?

Teach first and name one next step. Answer the title question in the first ten minutes, leave 15 minutes for questions, and explain exactly what happens in the consultation, assessment or tour. End with a feedback card or poll: “Would you like someone to call you?” yes or no.

Then move fast. In Harvard Business Review research on online leads (March 2011), firms that contacted leads within an hour were nearly seven times as likely to qualify them as firms that waited longer. Attendees are warmer than web leads, but the clock still applies.

When	Attendees	Registered no-shows
Same day	Thank-you email with a summary and booking link	Replay or next date
Day 1	Call everyone who said yes on the card	Text (with consent) offering the replay
Day 2	Call remaining attendees once	Second email with one key point
Day 3	Email anyone not reached with a booking link	Invite to the next event

Track each attendee in one list: attended, wants a call, called, booked, became a client.

What compliance items apply?

Check these before launch. This is general information, not legal advice.

- Meta housing category. Community ads can fall under Meta's housing Special Ad Category, which fixes age targeting at 18–65+ and restricts ZIP targeting (Meta Marketing API docs).
- 55+ claims. These depend on the Housing for Older Persons Act exemption (NAHB, November 30, 2021).
- No outcome promises. Describe care factually.
- Texting. The TCPA still requires prior express written consent for autodialed marketing texts. Since April 11, 2025, people can revoke by any reasonable means, such as replying STOP, and opt-outs must be honored within 10 business days (Kelley Drye; Burr & Forman).
- Email. CAN-SPAM covers B2B email too: accurate headers, a postal address and opt-outs honored within 10 business days (FTC). Bulk Gmail senders also need SPF, DKIM and DMARC (Google, February 1, 2024).

Where do most owners get stuck?

> Filling seats at a sane cost. The first event shows your real cost per registration. Lowering it takes testing topics, audiences and creative across several events before the money runs out.

> Reminder automation across email and text. A sequence that pulls from your form, respects text consent, honors STOP and stops for cancellations takes systems work most teams do not have time for.

> Staying in touch across a long decision. Families may attend months before they are ready. Keeping that relationship warm without it feeling like a sales push takes a CRM set up for it and someone who owns it.
